Network Smarter!
Every connection matters.

From affordability to accessibility the NFC business cards are setting new benchmarks in regard to their paper counterparts. They have opened a complete digital sphere where the business houses can interact with their prospective clients easily, quickly, and smartly. With so many advancements in technology, it is no wonder that we definitely need a shift to smart business cards.

What are NFC Business Cards

NFC business card is basically a smart contact card that works on NFC (Near Field Communication) based technology. The card contains an NFC chip embedded that are smart little chips that allow you to snag digital information with your smartphone at short range. When the card is tapped on any NFC compatible device the information on the card is reflected digitally on the other device like a digital profile and the same can be saved by the receiver.

NFC technology is a wonder for business cards because it eases the way we interact and share information. The dashboard contains name, number, professional email, personal email, and social medial links like Facebook, WhatsApp, Twitter, YouTube, and LinkedIn profiles that one can share with the other person.

Today's new business cards with NFC also include analytics features for businesses that enable the user to track the sales performance of the employees. The analytics feature includes the details of the geological stamp, device stamp, time stamp, date stamp, and the number of taps stamp.
